Notes On Guyana's Ambassador to the USSR

- Ambassador*
- 1) ~~Ambassador~~ to the USSR; met by Sharon Amos, Tim Carter, Deborah T. at a luncheon held at the Palm Court...we showed him the article in the World Council of Churches magazine and told him of the article in the New Times. He didn't seem overly impressed. He asked Tim if the article was written by one of our members? Tim said no, it was not, just someone that worked closely along with us and was familiar with our work. Sharon and Tim basically gave him some background of p.t., told him of our support of leftist movements & people including the Chillian refugees. When asked if he knew much about our group, he said he did not, but had read the article about the delivery of twins over radio in the North West. He said normally in the type of work he does he would only here the major problems that come up, he declared he had not heard anything about us though. Ambassador said he knew something of P.T. because he had met the woman who knows Bonnie Mann. Paula Adams. Sharon asked him about Guyana's relationship with Korea, He said Korea was probably the most beautiful country he had been in scenically, they were highly industrialized. Deb asked about Guyana's relationship with China, He said it was good. China was the only country that gave loans without strings attached. He said you have to understand the Chinese though. They don't like Russia so their foreign policy includes everyone anti Russian eg.. Russia is supportive of the PPP, therefore China gave something like 54 million dollars to Guyana's PNC (non-aligned). Sharon mentioned we had good support from a lot of people and Minister, but we had one not so good article, a letter from Hoyte in response to the article we had written in the chronicle about our clinic and that we were assisting all people in the North West Region. He seemed He said Hoyte was a good man, very direct. Sharon said she thought he could have come to us first and confronted us on the issue, because we do give free medical facilities to all ect. and evidently he took it wrong, we weren't, trying to say we were the only medical facilities there. She asked him what he thought of the article? He shifted uncomfortably, shrugged his shoulders and said it was hard for him to say because he had not been there. He asked us the type of crops we were growing, said Guyana was concerned about doing things for export and asked if we were looking into cannery. He had heard that canneries were not expensive, something like (30,000) thirty thousand dollars. He mentioned boiling okra and packing it or canning pineapple, he said he had no real knowledge of cannery but knew they needed one. Sharon asked if there would be any problem in getting it into the country, He said no, he felt the Govt. would welcome it. I mentioned there might be a problem of getting it through customs and Tim told him some of the difficulties we'd had with customs, He agreed that customs was even difficult even for him. He said the only way to change the economic situation in Guyana would be to educate the people to produce. Sharon told him that perhaps changing the medium would be a way of accomplishing this. She had noticed the movies portray the Hollywood side of life only. I mentioned perhaps it would be good to get a documentary on Watts or Harlem to let the people see situations as they are. He acknowledged that the medium could be used. The Ambassador formerly worked in the Ministry of National Development under Dr. Reid, and has been working with the Ministry of Foreign Affairs for one month, he was 26 when he got his job at National Development, worked there six years now in his early thirties, has no family, said he faced alot of difficulties when he began, he was idealistic and found he had to make alot of compermises. This upset him a great deal but he later found that politics is compermise in every country all over the world. he noted that Russia has companies from Japan and the USA working in Russia. Sharon asked him how this could be... what type of countries? He said oil companies
